Festivals of Mising Community

Objectives and Importance of the Study:

The Mising community has been living in Assam for a long time as a part of the large Assamese society. The Misings, who have been proud to be inhabitants of Assam since their arrival in Assam, are rich in their own festivals.

The Mising people have maintained their traditions in harmony with the Assamese society. The festivals of the community are part of their traditions and culture. The objective of this field report is to discuss the traditional festivals celebrated in the Mising society. The topic entitled "Festivals of the Mising Community" is studied with the following objectives in mind:

- (a) To give an introduction of the Mising people with special reference to the Mising people residing in Ramnagar Mising Village, Charaideo district, Assam.
- (b) To give an overview of the time of arrival of the Mising people in Assam .
- (c) To discuss the traditional festivals of the Mising community.

Traditional Customs of Tea Garden Community

There is no in-depth research on the traditional customs of the tea garden community of Assam. The book "Culture of the Tea Tribe" by Shri Dimbeswar Tasa and "Tea Workers of Assam and the Scholarly Society of the Nineteenth Century" by Prasenjit Chowdhury have discussed the customs of the tea garden community but they are not able to throw light on the important aspects of the traditional customs of the community.

0.3 Objectives and Importance of the Study:-

The tea garden community of Assam is part and parcel of the large Assamese society. Proper and systematic study of the customs of the people of the tea garden community can help in the better understanding of the society and culture of this community. The objectives and importance of the study are to study the traditional customs of the tea garden community living in Charaideo district and the changing customs of the community in Charaideo district, etc.
